KEY ELEMENTS OF A BLOCKCHAIN

- Distributed ledger technology allows all network participants to access a secure, tamper-proof record of transactions in real time. By removing the need for repeated entries and manual reconciliation, it streamlines processes and makes business faster, smarter, and more efficient.
- Once a transaction is added to the shared ledger, no one can alter or delete it. If there's an error, a new transaction must be added to correct it—ensuring full transparency, as both records remain visible to all participants.
- Smart contracts are self-executing rules stored on the blockchain that automate and speed up transactions. They can handle everything from corporate bond transfers to triggering travel insurance payouts—securely and without middlemen.
